

Student Focused Education

The Steve Rummeler HOPE Network offers free naloxone training designed specifically for middle and high school students. This presentation uses age-appropriate language and pacing, and focuses on empowering students with the knowledge and confidence to respond in a crisis.

Cost

There is no cost to the training. Donations are always appreciated.

Learning Goals

SRHN's student-focused naloxone training covers:

- Key info on opioids and the opioid crisis
- The dangers of fentanyl
- Signs and symptoms of an opioid overdose
- What naloxone is, and how it works to reverse an overdose
- Action steps for responding to an overdose
- How to administer injectable (IM) and nasal naloxone
- Protections provided by Steve's Law (MN's Good Samaritan/Naloxone Law)
- Where and how to get naloxone

Resources

Along with the training, we bring free take-home resources like naloxone kits, fentanyl test strips, and helpful printed guides so students walk away informed and prepared.

Training Details

- ✓ 45-60 minutes
- ✓ Free naloxone kit
- ✓ Certificate of completion
- ✓ Live Q&A engagement
- ✓ Hands-on demonstration
- ✓ Customized for middle- and high school students

Request a group training

Student Feedback

"This was honestly the best presentation I've ever watched. Everything was thoroughly explained and engaging and it was by far the most informational. Thank you so much for everything you do."

"This was very helpful and made me feel more prepared in the event that somebody around me happens to overdose. Thank you!"

"I feel this was very useful. Especially living in a world where friends get into things and you are worried for them this can bring peace of mind."

"Was very kind, answered all questions clearly and in detail, patient, and provided lots of resources, both digital and physical."

"I feel much more confident in my knowledge about opioid overdoses and prepared to provide help to the best of my ability in the event of an overdose."